Garrett Merville works on a range of public finance matters for cities, counties, special districts, and school districts throughout Texas. Garrett's practice also includes tax-exempt financings for waste disposal facilities, industrial development, and healthcare facilities. He serves as bond counsel, underwriter's counsel and disclosure counsel in such transactions.

Garrett works on matters related to tax-exempt finance and tax credit transactions at the federal, state and local levels, with a focus on affordable and workforce housing development. He has experience with governmental entities in public-private partnerships in connection with 4% and 9% low-income housing tax credit transactions and workforce housing transactions involving public facility corporations and housing finance corporations.

In addition to helping clients meet their financing and infrastructure needs, Garrett also serves as general counsel to a variety of Texas special districts.
