

Trump Is Making Promises That Many Economists Call Unrealistic

Media Mentions

September 10, 2024 | The New York Times | 1 minute read | Washington, DC

Former President Donald Trump promises that if he is reelected that he will cut Americans' energy costs in half in just one year.

Scott Segal, co-chair of Bracewell's Policy Resolution Group, told The New York Times that electricity prices are a result of complex factors, such as inflation, demand growth, regulation and extreme weather.

"Some of these factors can be addressed at the margin," stated Segal, but "controlling the weather is a tall order."

Related People

Scott

Partner

WASHINGTON, DC

+1.202.828.5845

scott.segal@bracewell.com

Related Industries

Energy

Related Practices

Government Relations

Strategic Communications