

Renewable natural gas is playing an increasingly central role in the energy transition. Our roots in the energy industry strongly position us to help clients identify value additive opportunities and revenue stream multipliers.

We draw on our bench of EPA veterans -->, corporate practitioners -->, tax experts --> and lobbyists --> — as well as our comprehensive experience and knowledge of the electric power --> and cryptocurrency --> markets — to help clients stay ahead of developments in this rapidly evolving arena.

We represent landfill owners, refiners, developers, financial institutions, private equity funds and industry coalitions on a range of matters, such as:

- development projects, including joint ventures, offtake agreements, real estate documents, landfill gas and other feedstock supply agreements, royalty arrangements, construction agreements and operation agreements
- financing transactions
- lobbying
- federal incentives and state environmental regulations, including tax credits, renewable portfolio standards (RPS), low carbon fuel standards (LCFS) and other state programs
